ABOUT THE PROJECT

The project's core aim is to enable recognition, transparency, and comparability of qualifications and learning outcomes of IC (intercultural) service providers (i.e., trainers, advisors and coaches) by developing and establishing a framework of binding professional standards and regulations for the accreditation process as well as a self-assessment tool for IC providers.

Such a framework will offer evidence-based, comprehensible, and reliable selection criteria to clients, learners, IC service providers, and institutions offering intercultural training qualifications.

The regulations and self-assessment tool will provide information about the level of current qualification and guidance for achieving accreditation.
