

European Certificate for Intercultural Learning
Professionals

About the project

The project's core aim is to create a European Certificate for Intercultural Learning Professionals (ECILP) by developing and establishing a framework of binding professional standards and regulations.

ECILP will include a self-assessment tool for intercultural professionals and an accreditation process ensuring competent, impartial and independent assessments.

The ECILP certificate will be valid throughout Europe to enable and improve recognition, transparency and comparability of qualifications and learning outcomes of intercultural service providers (i.e., trainers, advisors and coaches).

The ECILP framework will contain a wide range of evidence-based, comprehensible and reliable selection criteria that will give orientation to clients, learners, intercultural service providers and institutions offering intercultural training.

The regulations and the self-assessment tool will provide information about the level of current qualification and guidance for achieving accreditation.
